American Legion Celebrates 105th Anniversary

The American Legion (AL) turned 105 years old! Various Posts and Auxiliary Units from the area, along with the National Auxiliary President Lisa Williamson from Alaska and Auxiliary Department President Holly Heatly with Unit 453 Dallas, participated at a celebration held at the NASJRB BX recently.

The AL was chartered by Congress in 1919 as a veterans organization. Focusing on service to veterans, service members, families and communities, the organization evolved from a group of war-weary veterans of WW1 into one of the most influential nonprofit groups in the United States, headquartered in Indianapolis, Indiana. It comprises state, U.S. territory and overseas departments made up of local Posts.

A cake-cutting ceremony was held and enjoyed by everyone in attendance.

Baseball and Softball District Games Heating Up

The Western Hills baseball team came up a little short against Lake Worth last week in its final game before spring break, but coach James Holcomb said his team is showing some promising signs.

The Cougars lost 13-5 last Wednesday to Lake Worth, and Holcomb said the final score was not indicative of how the game went.

“The young men competed and played well with the exception of one rough inning,” Holcomb said. “It was a back-and-forth game for the most part, and we showed that we can battle and play through adversity when we are locked in and confident. It was a good test for us leading up to district play.”

Andrew Zabala went two-for-three with 2 runs scored in the game, Johan Sifuentes went two-for-four with four RBIs, and Trey Martinez pitched four innings and had seven strike outs, while only giving up four hits. Julian Moreno also was great behind the plate throwing out a couple base runners and blocking up a lot of strike-threes,” Holcomb said.

With the district season now underway, Holcomb said the non-district prepared his team well for district competition.

“We played a lot of tougher teams to get us ready for district play,” Holcomb said. “I feel like our players understand the task at hand and are primed to compete.”

Western Hills plays Diamond Hill-Jarvis this week, and Holcomb expects a tough series.

“It's going to be tough-but-fun baseball,” Holcomb said. “Zo (Alonzo Herrera) does a great job over there at DHJ, and we will need to play clean and disciplined baseball to beat the Eagles.”

Over at Benbrook, the Bobcats defeated Mineral Wells by a score of 10-0 last week and play against Carter-Riverside in their two-game series this week.

In softball, the Western Hills Lady Cougars rallied from a 6-run, second inning deficit to defeat Dunbar by a score of 19-15 last week just before the break.

On the pitch, the Benbrook girls soccer team continued their winning ways with a victory against YWLA in its final game before spring break, winning 9-0 to remain unbeaten in district.

Coach Luz Castillo said the team performed well in every facet of the game.

“We had four different players make goals,” Castillo said. “Our standout performances came from senior Campbell Cox with 4 goals and three assists. Freshman Lexie Garcia had 2 goals and an assist and sophomore Randee Slater had 2 goals too. Sophomore Victoria Arriaga also booted a goal in frame.”

Benbrook played Eastern Hills in its season finale on Tuesday night after the paper went to press, and with a victory would wrap up its fourth consecutive district championship.

Project Overview

The proposed SH 183 project lies within the cities of Fort Worth, River Oaks, Westworth Village and White Settlement, and is the primary roadway access to the Naval Air Station Joint Reserve Base (NAS JRB) Fort Worth entrance. Approximately 5-miles in length, proposed improvements include reconstructing and widening the roadway from four to six lanes from I-30 to north of the West Fork Trinity River as well as reconstructing the existing four lanes with shoulders from north of the West Fork Trinity River to SH 199. Designs include the addition of shared-use paths and sidewalks that would provide connectivity to the Bomber Spur, Leonard and Trinity Trails as well as the Airfield Falls Trailhead and Conservation Park. The reconstruction would also provide for drainage improvements and enhanced connectivity with Trinity Metro transportation services along the corridor.

Act Locally During Global Volunteer Month

April is Global Volunteer Month, a time to celebrate volunteers and inspire volunteerism in communities large and small.

Volunteerism is on the decline, according to research from AmeriCorps and the U.S. Census Bureau. And what's more, Points of Light, a global nonprofit dedicated to inspiring, equipping and mobilizing people to take action that changes the world, shared that 73 percent of people believe that volunteering is more important than ever, yet 66 percent think they can't make a big impact in their communities. During Global Volunteer Month, advocates are trying to change that perception at the local level.

"Volunteers are crucial to solving pressing challenges, creating vibrant communities and strengthening our social fabric," said Jennifer Sirangelo, president and CEO of Points of Light. "Every person has something to share or give."

To boost volunteer engagement during Global Volunteer Month, Points of Light is sharing the following ways you and your family can make a positive impact in your neighborhood or town:

Spread the word: Use the Global Volunteer Month toolkit, along with the hashtag #GlobalVolunteerMonth to thank volunteers. Be sure to tag a volunteer whose impact you appreciate.

Take the pledge: To show your commitment to volunteering, take Points of Light's pledge. Then, discover ways to get involved that support your favorite cause and availability using Points of Light Engage, a database featuring hundreds of thousands of volunteer opportunities worldwide, including some in your area. Remember that volunteering doesn't have to be through a formal organization. Lending a helping hand to a friend, family member or neighbor counts, too. In fact, 70 percent of volunteer work is carried out locally and informally, without the involvement of any organization, according to the UN.

Expand your impact: Learn about the Points of Light Civic Circle®, a framework that outlines the many forms of civic engagement. These actions include listening and learning, using one's voice, social entrepreneurship, volunteering, public, national or military service, using one's purchasing power to express values, working, voting and donating.

Get inspired: Points of Light recognizes ordinary people doing extraordinary things to strengthen communities and solve persistent problems with its Daily Point of Light Award. Know an outstanding volunteer in your community? Nominate them as a Daily Point of Light by visiting pointsoflight.org/dailypointoflight, or to inspire others, share these stories of recent honorees:

Daily Point of Light Award honoree T'Kiyah Threatt is a 21-year-old from Uniontown, Alabama, a town of just over 2,000 residents. She dove into service as a high school junior when she started working with C.H.O.I.C.E., an organization that ensures young people get needed resources. Three years ago, she became the first president of the Youth Advisory Council and began leading mentoring efforts, going above and beyond to find funds for a scholarship for a deserving mentee. Even after moving away for college, Threatt returns to work with her own mentee while recruiting community partners and soliciting funding for programs.

No matter the scale, Points of Light recognizes the spirit of volunteerism as a driving force of change around the world.

"We're celebrating volunteers around the world all month long, as well as calling on people to take action. Throughout April, lend your time, talent and passion to a cause you care about and invite others to join you, creating a ripple effect of change," said Sirangelo.

Texas History Minute by Dr. Ken Bridges

Confederate General and U.S. Senator, Samuel B. Maxey

The Civil War era produced many interesting figures in Texas History. Among them was Samuel B. Maxey, a lawyer, Confederate general, and U. S. Senator.

Samuel Bell Maxey was born in 1825 in southern Kentucky. His father, Rice Maxey, was an attorney. He attended school faithfully, and in 1842, he was selected to attend the U.S. Military Academy at West Point. His roommate was Stonewall Jackson and attended classes with Ulysses S. Grant. He struggled academically at West Point but graduated in 1846 as a second lieutenant.

As his class graduated, the United States was entering the war with Mexico. Maxey was assigned to an infantry unit in Monterey. He saw action in some of the fiercest battles of the Mexican War and was cited for his bravery and promoted to first lieutenant. As the war ended, Maxey was assigned to a police unit as the U. S. Army occupied Mexico City. Once the peace treaty with Mexico was signed, Maxey was reassigned to a post in Missouri. He resigned from the army in 1849 and returned to Kentucky.

He decided to follow in his father's footsteps and become an attorney. He studied law under his father, a common arrangement in a time when there were few law schools. He was admitted to the Kentucky bar in 1851 and joined his father's law practice. He married in 1853 and moved to Texas with his father and bride in 1857.

They settled in Lamar County, just south of Paris, where they established a thriving law practice. In 1858, he was elected district attorney for Lamar County. When the Civil War approached, he was elected to the secession convention in 1861 and supported Texas joining the Confederacy. He was elected to the state senate but declined the position in order to raise an infantry regiment for the South. His father served in the state senate instead. He organized the Ninth Infantry Regiment near Bonham as its colonel, enlisting more than a thousand men. However, he was soon reassigned. He was promoted to brigadier general in 1862 and participated in the Battle of Port Hudson in Louisiana in 1863.

He was reassigned later in 1863 to take military command of the Indian Territory (present-day Oklahoma), where he worked with the tribes allied to the Confederacy against the Union government. He organized raids on Union incursions into the area, seizing supplies and preventing a possible Union invasion of Texas from the North.

In February 1865, Maxey was ordered to Houston to take command of a division stationed in the area. By the time he arrived, the war was nearly over. Confederate units were retreating in all directions, shortages of food and ammunition were everywhere, and the troops all saw the writing on the wall. Many of Maxey's troops decided the Confederacy was a lost cause and deserted. By the end of April, the Confederate government in Richmond had collapsed, Gen. Robert E. Lee and most other generals had surrendered, and Confederate President Jefferson Davis was on the run. He asked the remaining Confederate officials in Texas to resign, and he left his post in May. Upon his return to Paris, he surrendered to Union officers who had already made their way to the area.

After the end of the war, he enlisted the help of his old classmate Gen. Grant to apply for a pardon from the federal government, which was granted in 1867. He resumed his legal work and attempted a run for office. In 1872, he ran for Congress but lost the Democratic nomination. Gov. Edmund J. Davis, though a former Union general and a Republican, was impressed by Maxey and offered him a position as a judge. Maxey declined, feeling his legal work had created too many conflicts of interest.

In 1874, a new Democratic legislature had taken control in Austin. As state legislators still chose United States Senators at this point, they selected Maxey for the Senate. His tenure in the Senate was somewhat lackluster but he managed several successes involving transportation and infrastructure. He served on the committee on post offices and post roads where he expanded post offices across Texas, speeding up commerce and communications across the frontier areas, gained aid for improving the state's harbors along the Gulf of Mexico, and gained federal support for expanding the railroad network across the state. He also helped establish a stagecoach route between Fort Worth and Yuma, Arizona. He was re-elected in 1880.

He attempted a third term in 1886. Instead, Congressman John H. Reagan of Palestine, an eight-term congressman and former Confederate postmaster general, was selected by the state legislature to replace Maxey. Maxey accepted the decision and quietly returned to Texas in 1887.

Upon his arrival in Paris, Maxey resumed his law practice. He would eventually bring on two nephews as partners. In 1892, he retired from the law firm. His health was declining, and he traveled to Eureka Springs, Arkansas, in 1895 for the recuperative warm springs, but he died there at age 70.

In 1942, the United States Army opened Camp Maxey near Paris as a training center, but closed it after World War II ended. Maxey's home is considered a state historical site.
