Stay Connected During Natural Disasters

Natural disasters can occur anywhere, at any time. Having a plan to stay connected during emergencies is essential. In the midst of a natural disaster, you'll want to stay informed of local conditions and recommendations, be able to alert loved ones of your safety status, and have the peace of mind that comes with knowing you have a way to reach emergency personnel.

September is National Preparedness Month and to help ensure you stay connected during natural disasters, T-Mobile is offering the following tips to follow before and during a disaster:

Before a Disaster

- Check NOAA's National Weather Service and the National Hurricane Center to get tips and track storms.

- Ensure your disaster kit or go bag includes a list of emergency numbers, chargers and waterproof, resealable bags.

- Stay abreast of current conditions and forecasts by downloading the Red Cross and FEMA apps and by subscribing to local authorities' text alerts and social media channels.

- Enable Wireless Emergency Alerts (WEA) on your phone. WEA is a public safety notification system that enables authorized agencies to send messages to those with capable wireless devices alerting them of emergencies in their area.

- Check the T-Mobile Newsroom for the latest information on the wireless service provider's emergency response. Companies like T-Mobile have emergency response teams working to ensure they are ready to keep communities, first responders and individuals connected when it's needed most. During a Disaster

- Be ready for power outages and other interruptions. Keep your devices fully charged and enable your phone's battery-saving mode and dark mode to conserve charge.

- Keep calls (and all device usage) to a minimum and make conversations as brief as possible. Or, consider sending text messages instead. During times of congestion, texts are more likely to go through than calls.

- Have a charged portable power bank for your phone handy as back-up.

- Ensure you have a way to make important calls should regular cellular coverage be limited or unavailable. For example, you can set up Wi-Fi calling. If calling 911 using Wi-Fi calling, give the operator your address.

Natural disasters are on the rise, making it important to be prepared. As part of your planning, be proactive about ensuring you have a way to stay informed and in touch with those who matter most to you, come what may.

Follow These 10 Steps to Be Proactive About Your Brain Health

As part of Healthy Aging Month this September, the Alzheimer's Foundation of America (AFA) is offering ten steps to promote healthy aging and good brain health.

"Lifestyle choices are integral to healthy aging, protecting brain health, and reducing the risk of developing dementia," said Charles J. Fuschillo, Jr., AFA's president & CEO. "Healthy aging month is a great time to remind people that healthy aging is something everyone should prioritize, because it's never too soon to start."

AFA encourages individuals to take the following ten steps to promote good brain health and healthy aging:

1. Eat Well. Adopt a low-fat diet high on fruits and veggies, like strawberries, blueberries, and broccoli. Take daily vitamins. Limit intake of red meats, fried and processed foods, salt, and sugar. In general, foods that are "heart healthy" are also "brain healthy."

2. Stay Active. Physical activity increases blood flow to the brain and can also help improve mood and overall wellbeing. Brisk walking benefits brain health, while aerobics can boost your heart rate, and weight training builds strength and flexibility.

3. Learn New Things. Challenge your brain by starting a new hobby like playing tennis, learning to speak a foreign language, trying a cooking class, or something you have not done before. Even something as simple as brushing your teeth with your non-dominant hand stimulates the brain by forcing it to think outside of its normal routine.

4. Get Enough Sleep. Getting a consistent sleep every night is key; at least seven to nine hours is ideal. Having a good sleep environment is also helpful. Insomnia or sleep apnea can have serious physical effects and negatively affect memory and thinking.

5. Mind Your Medication. Medication can affect everyone differently, especially as you age. When getting a new medication or something you have not taken in a while (whether over the counter or prescription), talk to your doctor or local pharmacist.

6. Stop Smoking and Limit Alcohol. Smoking can increase the risk of other serious illnesses, while too much alcohol can impair judgment and cause accidents, including falls, broken bones, and car crashes.

7. Stay Connected. Social interaction and maintaining an active social life are very important for brain health, cognitive stimulation and mood. Invite friends and family over for a meal, board games, or just to hang out. Engaging in your community and participating in group activities is also beneficial.

8. Know Your Blood Pressure. Blood pressure can impact your cognitive functioning. Visit your physician regularly to check your blood pressure and make sure it is in normal range.

9. See Your Doctor. Maintain checkups. Health screenings are key to managing chronic illnesses, such as diabetes, cardiovascular disease, and obesity, all of which can impact brain health. Speak with your physician about any concerns or questions you have about your health.

10. Get a Memory Screening. Our brains need regular checkups, just as other parts of our bodies do. Memory screenings are quick, noninvasive exams for our brains. AFA offers free virtual memory screenings every weekday—visit www.alzfdn.org or call AFA at 866-232-8484 to learn more about getting a free virtual memory screening. You can also talk to your doctor about getting a screening as part of your annual wellness exam.

Individuals wishing to learn more about healthy aging and promoting good brain health can contact the Alzheimer's Foundation of America's Helpline at 866-232-8484 or visit AFA's website, www.alzfdn.org.

First Monday Quilt Club - Project Linus Needs Volunteers

Come join the fun and fellowship with the Quilt Club volunteers while you make a difference in our community and bless others by making quilts for Project Linus.

The First Monday Quilt Club will meet at Bethany Christian Church located at 1500 Meadow Park Drive in White Settlement from 10 a.m. to 1 p.m. on Monday, Oct. 2. Ladies may bring brunch or snack foods to share with others if desired.

Project Linus is a non-profit service organization. The members of this group are Tarrant County Chapter Project Linus volunteers who create handmade quilts and blankets that provide love, warmth, and comfort for local children who have suffered trauma, tragedy, or illness. Volunteers also make coverlets for veterans, nursing home residents, and the homeless. Unfortunately, the need for these blankets increases each month. They desperately need volunteers with portable sewing machines to help assemble the quilts.

No experience is needed - there is a place for you. Anyone can help if you can follow instructions, sew, tie a knot, crochet a blanket, or tell a good joke. Volunteers have lots of fun and develop fantastic friendships. High school students can receive community service credits for participating. Materials (fabric, batting, thread, and yarn) are provided.

Donations of fabric, yarn, thread, sewing machines, sergers, or money to purchase materials are greatly appreciated.

Come join the fun and enjoy fellowship with the Quilt Club volunteers while you make a difference in our community by being a blessing to others.

For more information about the mission of Project Linus, visit www.projectlinus.org. For more information on this group and meetings, call Virginia Biela at 817-244-1263.

Texas Politician and Judge John Hancock by Dr. Ken Bridges

History knows well the story of John Hancock, the patriot from the American Revolution whose name is featured prominently on the Declaration of Independence. But there is another John Hancock who had his own adventures in war and politics. This John Hancock would travel to Texas, serve as a judge and attorney, and later become a member of Congress.

John Hancock was not related to his famous namesake. This one was born in October 1824 in Jackson County, Ala., a lightly populated area in the northeast corner of Alabama. He was the seventh of 10 children born to John and Sarah Hancock.

Hancock's oldest brother, George, was 17 years his senior. In 1835, he had left Alabama for Texas where he served in the Texas Revolution, fighting at the famed Battle of San Jacinto in 1836. He later became a respected and prosperous merchant in the Austin area. Tales of his adventures in far-off Texas inspired the younger Hancock, who began planning for his own successful career.

After spending his childhood on the family farm, he went to nearby Knoxville, where he studied at the University of East Tennessee. After graduation, he began an apprenticeship with an attorney in Winchester, Tennessee, not far from his childhood home. He studied the law and procedures carefully before going to an Alabama judge to show his competency in the law. As a result, in 1846, not yet 22, he was admitted to the bar in Alabama.

The next year, Hancock moved to Austin and started his own law firm. It proved very successful, and his reputation grew. In 1851, at the age of 27, he was elected as a district judge. On the bench, he was well-regarded by court observers and attorneys. His proceedings were respected as efficient and fair and his rulings were sound. Though elected to a six-year term, he apparently grew bored with serving as a judge and became enticed by other opportunities. He resigned in 1855, began ranching and resumed his law practice.

As tensions between North and South flared, he was drawn back into politics. He was elected to the state legislature in fall 1859 as a Unionist Democrat determined to keep Texas in the Union. The Texas Hill Country and the Red River Valley were known for their strong Unionist stands. After the election of Abraham Lincoln as president in fall 1860, secessionists began driving southern states from the Union.

Gov. Sam Houston was also a devout Unionist, at one point declaring that Texas had shed its blood to get into the Union. Hancock stood with Houston against the forces of secession, but it soon became clear that Texas Unionists were far outnumbered among voters and legislators. Houston reluctantly called for a secession convention and a later vote. Texans voted overwhelmingly for secession, and the secession convention demanded that all officeholders swear an oath of loyalty to the Confederacy or their elected offices would be declared vacant.

For Hancock, political expediency did not matter. Principle was what was at stake. He refused to take the oath supporting the Confederacy. Like Houston, Hancock was expelled from his office by March 1861.

He remained a conscientious objector throughout the Civil War, often moving from one place to another. He still worked as an attorney, practicing only in Texas courts and refusing to try cases in Confederate courts. After the Confederate draft was enacted, officials began looking for him to press him into the army. Hancock fled to Mexico in 1864 rather than serve, still determined to support the Union. By the spring of 1865, he was in New Orleans when he learned of the Confederate surrender and returned home.

Hancock returned to politics, serving in the 1866 State Constitutional Convention, working to make Texas part of the United States again.

In 1870, he was elected to Congress, representing most of Central Texas. Much of his work in Congress dealt with policies relating to the treatment of Native Americans. Settlers on the frontier had long been enraged with the fights between settlers seeking new lands and the tribes determined to defend their own lands. Hancock's stances toward the tribes were harsh, echoing the policies of President Ulysses S. Grant and many other westerners at the time. He supported the policy forcing tribes on the reservations, pushed legislation cutting rations provided by the federal government, and pushed laws allowing hunting parties to leave reservations only when accompanied by the army.

He was defeated for re-nomination in 1876. He returned to Congress in 1882, served one term, and declined to run again in 1884. He retired from politics altogether, but he enjoyed a lively law practice. He remained an active and popular presence in Austin courtrooms, sometimes defending the most notorious clients. He died in Austin in July 1893 at the age of 68.
