Brewer Volleyball and Cross Country Preview

With the start of volleyball and cross country season, high school sports for the 2022-23 school year are officially underway.

Brewer has a lot to be excited about in both sports this coming season, and first-year Bears volleyball coach Jill Barkey said she likes her team's chances to compete for a playoff spot.

"This team is fun to watch," Barkey said. "We're still getting to know each other, but they're taking the coaching, hopping on board and running with it."

Brewer has eight returning starters this season, including standouts Kylie Intfen, Torrie Frye and Ashlyn Gehring.

Barkey said the biggest change the Bears program are with the coaching staff.

"There are five of us and the only one who isn't new is my varsity assistant, Ashley Brown," Barkey said. "She has been instrumental in this transition for the girls."

The Brewer coach said she believes her coaching staff has the recipe for the Bears to compete for one of the four playoff spots this year and said she believes there is a team to beat.

"We're working on our defense and focusing in on the little things," Barkey said. "Offensively, we're very strong. Aledo has always been tough. But we're coming for a top finish this season."

missed a post-season berth in 2021-22, finishing fifth in district with an overall record of 15-22.

The Bears went 3-3 in their opening tournament in Abilene this past week and were 4-3 through their first seven games.

On the trails, the girls cross country team won a district championship in 2021 and finished 11th place out of 24 teams at region, while the boy's team finished sixth at district and qualified individual runner Gus Weir for region.

Coach Kathi Olson said she is impressed by the turnout she has had so far this season.

"We're looking pretty good so far," Olson said. "We have 54 on the roster; last year we had 37 total."

Brewer's first meet of the season is tomorrow, and runners on the girl's side include Ki Rendon, Aolani Woldai, Lus Morales, Claire Simons, Cora Carr, and Sarai Aguilar; while on the boy's side, runners include Weir, Vontez Castillo, Jose Becerrill, Alex Vega, Donavyn Smith, Yahir Miramontes, and Ronnie Rangel.

"In cross country, a team is only as good as its 3, 4, and 5 runners," Olson said. "The 1 and 2 runners will do what they do. The others are the key to advancing to each level."

Olson said there are a few teams to beat in district as well.

"Azle, Aledo, and Granbury are always really good teams," Olson said. "We also have Northwest in our district this year. They are always a solid competitor."

Dickies Arena to Host Event Friday

With the additional burden of back-to-school expenses being felt, the Tarrant Area Food Bank is taking some of the stress off families by increasing their food distribution schedules through the end of August, including their large scale Back-to-School Mega Mobile event at Dickies Arena on Friday, Aug. 19.

Additionally, with this increase in mobile events, TAFB continues to rely on volunteers to help run the events. The demand for volunteers is high while the need is great. If you can give your time to help serve others, please visit www.tafb.org/volunteer to view and sign-up to volunteer at the Tarrant Area Food Bank.

TAFB will hold a Mobile Market event at Herman Clark Stadium Wednesday, Aug. 31 from 6:30 p.m. to 8:30 p.m.

The Back-to-School Mega Mobile Market will be held at Dickies Arena—

Yellow Lot 3434 Trail Drive in Fort Worth, Friday, Aug. 19 from 8 to 10 a.m. Families can expect to receive some kid-friendly nutritious meals as a part of the 50 pounds of food each family will receive.

As inflation continues to rise to record levels, families are shopping for back-to-school supplies at higher prices. Many families are making economic tradeoffs. No one should have to choose between food and school supplies.

TAFB is also experiencing inflationary pressures to meet higher than expected demand.

TAFB has spent over $1M per month of unbudgeted funding since May of 2022 to cover the cost of the purchased food to meet the community need. Each family will receive a 50 pound box of food for the family with an assortment of dairy, produce and protein.

From the American Red Cross

American Red Cross Seeks Volunteers to Assist Residents Impacted by Wildfires

Devastating wildfires continue to pop up and burn throughout North Texas, threatening communities, destroying property and upending lives. Due to the ongoing threat from wildfires, the American Red Cross North Texas Region is asking for individuals to become Red Cross volunteers and take part in future relief efforts.

“Our volunteer workforce is critical in carrying out the mission of the American Red Cross,” said Katrina Farmer, Red Cross North Texas Disaster Officer. “Volunteers respond to house fires, tornadoes, floods and more, offering the immediate assistance that our neighbors need. Please join our more than 1,600 North Texas volunteers and support your community.”

Since March 1, the Red Cross has responded to more than 160 wildfires in greater North Texas. Red Crossers provided immediate and long-term aid, staff shelters and evacuation points and set up canteen services for firefighters. Disaster Action Team, Disaster Recovery Casework, Mass Care Team and Shelter Services volunteers are on the frontlines of recovery response, and they are especially needed now. Visit redcross.org/volunteer and sign up today.

Disaster Action Team volunteers meet the disaster-caused needs of individuals and households, such as lodging and clothing, and connecting them with long term recovery services. Disaster Recovery Caseworkers provide follow-up and recovery planning services, including referrals, for individuals and households following disasters.

“The way the Disaster Action Team works is we wait for a call or a text letting us know we are needed” said Carla Signoret, Red Cross Disaster Action Team volunteer. “When a fire happens, we get the address and relevant details about the event. We try to reach the client within the first couple of hours. Our job is to be there, offer support and get their information so that those affected can get assistance.”

Mass Care Team members meet the emergency needs of individuals and communities affected by large scale disasters. Shelter volunteers support the day-to-day activities within a shelter, which may include working in reception, registration, feeding, dormitory, information or other vital areas.

The Red Cross is able to fulfill its humanitarian mission thanks dedicated volunteers and community support. Volunteers make up 90 percent of the Red Cross workforce and are essential to disaster response efforts. The Red Cross has volunteer opportunities for everyone. Find out more about making a real difference in people's lives by visiting redcross.org/northtexas.

Prevent Wildfires

As hot, dry conditions continue throughout the region, there is an elevated risk for wildfires. It is important for everyone to remain vigilant and reduce activities that could spark a wildfire. People cause 85 percent of wildfires by burning debris, using equipment improperly, discarding cigarettes carelessly, leaving campfires unattended and by arson.

- Don't drive your vehicle onto dry grass or brush. Hot components under your vehicle can spark fires.
- Use equipment responsibly. Lawn mowers, chain saws, tractors, and trimmers can all spark a wildfire.
- Use caution any time you use fire. Dispose of charcoal briquettes and fireplace ashes properly, never leave any outdoor fire unattended, and make sure that outdoor fires are fully extinguished before leaving the area.
- If residential debris burning is allowed – use caution! After obtaining any necessary permits, ensure that burning is not currently restricted in your area.
- Store combustible or flammable materials in approved safety containers away from the house.
- Keep the gas grill and propane tank at least 15 feet away from any structure. Do not use the grill during potentially dangerous fire weather conditions. Always have a fire extinguisher or hose nearby.

Be Prepared

It is important to be prepared in case of an emergency. Use the Red Cross Wildfire Preparedness Checklist to make sure you and your household are Red Cross Ready. Make an emergency preparedness kit, have a plan to stay connected with family and friends, download the Red Cross Emergency App and First Aid App and practice an evacuation plan.

About the American Red Cross:

The American Red Cross shelters, feeds and provides emotional support to victims of disasters; supplies about 40 percent of the nation's blood; teaches skills that save lives; provides international humanitarian aid; and supports military members and their families. The Red Cross is a not-for-profit organization that depends on volunteers and the generosity of the American public to perform its mission. Former Governor of Texas, Pa Ferguson by Dr. Ken Bridges

Pa Ferguson was one of the most controversial governors in the history of Texas. The consequences of his administration would be felt for years. As a result of his actions, in 1917, Ferguson became the only Texas governor impeached and removed from office.

James Edward Ferguson, also called "Farmer Jim" or "Pa," was born in Bell County in 1871. His father died when he was four. He was kicked out of a local prep school, Salado College, at age 12 for misbehavior. He left home at 16, traveling and taking odd jobs until he returned to farm in Bell County. He became a lawyer in 1897, married Miriam A. Wallace in 1899, and expanded into real estate, insurance, and banking.

He was elected governor in 1914, his first election. He was a popular figure, signing laws protecting sharecroppers and providing state funding for rural schools. He was re-elected in 1916. Though he had signed legislation creating three new colleges, he found himself in a feud with professors at the University of Texas. Angry that two professors had openly criticized his administration, Ferguson demanded that the Board of Regents fire them. The Regents refused. In retaliation, Ferguson vetoed the entire appropriation for the university.

The fight with the university touched off a massive scandal. At the same time, officials had begun looking into Ferguson's finances. A grand jury in Travis County learned that in 1915, Ferguson had transferred $5,600 (more than $164,000 in 2022 dollars) from the state to a bank in Austin and then to his bank in Temple that he used to pay off a private debt. In July 1917, he was indicted for misappropriation of funds. The legislature then came back into session to consider impeachment, an attempt Ferguson immediately condemned.

Impeachment under the modern Texas constitution is similar to the process at the federal level. The Texas constitution gives the lower house of the legislature power to impeach judges, the governor, and state-wide elected officials. Impeachment is the equivalent of an indictment. To impeach, the House simply needs a majority vote on the different charges involved. The House then chooses members to act as managers to present the case to the Senate for trial, essentially acting as prosecuting attorneys. Senators will then act as jurors while the Chief Justice of the Supreme Court presides over the proceedings. The Senate can call witnesses to testify and vote to convict with a two-thirds majority vote.

The entire process is substantially the same in most of the other states. Eight governors have been removed from office through impeachment. Oklahoma has impeached and removed two governors, and West Virginia impeached four members of its State Supreme Court at the same time in 2018. Early in 2022, the South Dakota attorney general was impeached after an alleged hit-and-run auto accident. Usually, officials accused of impeachable offenses resign before impeachment proceedings begin.

The framers considered impeachment an important check on the power of the presidency and against corruption. Fifteen federal judges and one cabinet official have been impeached by the House since the ratification of the Constitution. Eight federal judges have been convicted in the Senate and removed from office. Though three presidents have been impeached, none have ever been removed from office.

With charges growing against Ferguson, the House of Representatives drew up 21 charges against him and voted to impeach.

They then sent the charges to the State Senate for trial. The State Senate reduced the charges to ten, half of which dealt with the transfer of the $5,600. Three others dealt with the veto of university funding as an abuse of power and official oppression. After a trial, the Senate -- all Democrats -- voted him out of office by a vote of 25-3 and banned him from holding any state office.

Though he was kicked out of office and disgraced in front of his colleagues, Ferguson was still very popular among his hard-core supporters and rallied back. He never faced any criminal charges regarding his conduct. He started his own newspaper that fall, Ferguson Forum, to promote his views that the impeachment was illegitimate. Barred from state office, he ran for president in 1920 on the American Party ticket. He only made the ballot in Texas, winning just under 10% of the vote. He lost the 1922 Democratic Primary race for U. S. Senate by a wide margin. In 1924, his wife, Miriam "Ma" Ferguson won election as governor as a stand-in candidate in a tightly-contested race. His wife was defeated for re-election in 1926, following questions of improper use of her pardoning power. She would serve one more term as governor from 1933 to 1935. Ferguson convinced his wife to run one more time in 1940. Ma placed a distant fifth. The Fergusons retired from public life afterward with James Ferguson dying in 1944 with his wife passing away in 1961.

Though no Texas official has been impeached and removed from office at the state level since Ferguson, Texas politics has hardly been scandal-free. Scandals of all sorts, from the brazen to the bizarre, have occurred for decades at all levels.

WATER Neighborly

Texans are proud of a lot of things, including our native plants. They're beautiful, hardy and don't need much water. Share a few of your favorites with your neighbor. Things will look a little more colorful and everyone will save some water. Native plants (and sharing them with your neighbors) can help keep the towers full.

Invasive Australian Redclaw Crayfish Present in Texas

Researchers from the University of Texas Rio Grande Valley recently collected invasive Australian Redclaw Crayfish (Cherax quadricarinatus) at the first known site in Texas. From January–February, three specimens were collected at an apartment complex pond that connects to a nearby resaca in the Brownsville area.

An earlier 2013 sighting of a female crayfish of this species with several young was also identified on iNaturalist, indicating this species has been present at this location for some time. This is just the second detection of this species in the wild in the United States with the other being in California.

Texas Parks and Wildlife Department (TPWD) Aquatic Biologist Dr. Archis Grubh surveyed numerous sites in the area during July and found three additional Australian Redclaw Crayfish between the apartment pond and a nearby resaca two miles away.

“We don’t know when these invasive crayfish were first introduced or how far they have spread, but we do know they can have a negative effect on local species and biodiversity,” said Grubh. “Spreading the word about this invasive species and reporting sightings to TPWD can help us better understand where it is distributed and potentially take steps to help prevent its spread.”

Both male and female Australian Redclaw Crayfish have been collected, so the potential for reproduction is a concern in these waterbodies. The species can reproduce prolifically, with females brooding up to five times a year at 1,000 eggs per clutch. Australian Redclaw Crayfish grow rapidly and can reach maximum size, up to two pounds, in under a year. These large crayfish can significantly alter habitat and vegetation, competitively exclude native crayfish, and impact native fish communities by direct predation. Australian Redclaw Crayfish can also carry Crayfish Plague as well as other parasites/diseases that could impact native crayfish.

Australian Redclaw Crayfish, along with all other members of the crayfish Family Parastacidae, are prohibited exotic species in Texas and cannot be legally purchased, sold or possessed in aquariums. It’s also illegal to release these crayfish into a public waterbody.

“Release of aquarium life is unfortunately a key means by which invasive species such as these crayfish are introduced,” said Monica McGarrity, TPWD Senior Scientist for Aquatic Invasive Species.

“Well-meaning, uninformed aquarium owners sometimes release their pets thinking they’re doing the best thing for them, but if they do survive, they can become invasive and harm the native aquatic species and ecosystem. Aquarium owners should research alternatives to aquarium dumping and help prevent introductions of the next invasive species.”

Australian Redclaw Crayfish are identifiable by their large size, large left claws with a red patch on the outer edge and the presence of four distinct ridges on the top of the head. Their preferred habitat includes slow-moving streams and stagnant water bodies (e.g., oxbows and resacas) with high turbidity. They are mobile over moist terrestrial vegetation and can move between waterbodies. The introduction to new areas increases with seasonal rainfall that can wash the crayfish across waterbodies.

Sightings of Australian Redclaw Crayfish should be reported to TPWD by emailing photos and location information to aquaticinvasives@tpwd.texas.gov.
