Lady Bears Softball Opens District with a Hard Earned Win over Granbury

The Brewer softball team opened up district win a barn-burning victory over Granbury last Tuesday, and coach Joshua Richards said it was not unexpected.

“Granbury always plays us very tough,” Richards said. “It felt destined to be a back-and-forth type game from the beginning, and both teams seemed a little nervous on defense working through the first game of district. Luckily our offense was extremely explosive and carried us to a big win. It was highest scoring game I’ve been a part of in over 20 years of high school softball or baseball. With a total of 49 runs, more than 40 hits, 22 walks and 13 errors, it definitely didn’t lack excitement. I’m so proud of our team members for persevering through our roughest moments and never giving up. The district race can truly be a marathon versus a sprint, and we were up for the challenge on Tuesday night.”

Brewer improved to 2-0 in district on Friday with an 11-0 win over Wichita Falls Rider.

“Our freshman pitcher, Khloe Winn did phenomenal job in the circle,” Richards said. “Learning how and when to pitch to contact and avoiding free bases has been a challenge at times for our staff, but she took another huge growth step as a varsity pitcher. With a strong North wind and cold front moving in our park played very tight. Our ladies offensively had to rely on consistent strike zone discipline, aggressive base-running and linking quality at bats together each inning. It was also the cleanest game we’ve played defensively this season, which is so important in district. It was also encouraging to see us bounce back with great energy and win a completely different style of game. That experience will definitely help us down the stretch.”

With the non-district schedule under its belt, Richards said he believes his team has been well-prepared for district competition.

“I’ve always been a big believer in scheduling the most challenging non-district schedule possible,” Richards said. “District cannot be the first time our team faces adversity. We’ve played multiple DFW and state-ranked opponents, traveled to Houston, Abilene and Iowa Park, and maxed out our scrimmage allotment all to prepare our ladies for the next 6-8 weeks. We now have 13-14 ladies that have gotten meaningful playing time throughout our expanded schedule (not to mention a JV group that plays primarily varsity level competition in non-district) and are ready to have an impact when called upon.”

On the pitch, the Brewer boy's soccer team moved to 7-2-2 in district competition following a 5-4 shoot out loss to Aledo last week. Brewer and Aledo were tied 2-2 at the end of regulation.

Joaquin Cedillo and Kenneth Rodriguez scored the Bears two goals in the game.

Brewer will host Azle in it's season finale on March 19 at 7:30 p.m.

On the girl's side, Brewer lost 3-1 to Aledo last week and are currently 4-5-2 in district competition. Brewer will host Azle in it's season finale on March 19 at 5:30 p.m.

Easter Egg Hunt at the Museum

The phases of the Moon are caused by the relative positions of the Moon, Sun and Earth.

Because the Moon produces no visible light of its own, we can only see the parts of the Moon that are lit up by other objects. A small amount of light comes from distant stars and the reflection of light from the Earth. However the main source of light for the Moon is the Sun.

A Total Eclipse of the Sun Over Texas

On Monday, April 8, viewers in the continental United States will be witness to a rare, spectacular event: the total eclipse of the Sun by the Moon. And Texas will be able to enjoy most of the event in spectacular fashion. Across the entire state, at least 80% of the Sun will be obscured, allowing almost all of the Lone Star State to experience the event, with the area of the total eclipse moving across the heart of Texas.

Already, preparations are being made across the state. Hotel rooms in the path of the totality, the area of total eclipse, have been sold out for months. State officials estimate that millions could be visiting the state that day.

Though the Moon orbits the Earth every 28 days, the alignment of the Earth, the Moon, and the Sun to produce an eclipse only happens rarely. Eclipses have been sighted for centuries. Among the earliest recorded eclipses occurred in ancient Mesopotamia in 1375 BC. Ancient Egyptians, who worshipped the Sun, were reportedly so disturbed by the bad omens associated with eclipses that they would never mention or write about them, fearing bad luck.

Historically, eclipses have been met with both fascination and dread. The Chinese believed that dragons were eating the Sun, causing an eclipse. Drums were beaten to drive them off, according to legend. Similarly, an old Choctaw legend held that a black squirrel caused solar eclipses when it tried to eat the Sun and that the people needed to make noises to scare it off. Cherokees believed that a giant frog jumped onto the sun to cause an eclipse and that the people must beat drums and make loud noises to scare it away. For generations, Navajos believed that they should not eat during an eclipse or they would experience digestive problems. Navajo traditions also warned against looking at the Sun during an eclipse, or they would go blind, a belief backed by modern science. The ancient Mayans, without benefit of calculators or computers, were able to carefully calculate when eclipses would occur.

Eclipses have also been an important tool for scientific discovery. Astronomers discovered a new comet during an eclipse in AD 418. The Sun's corona was first noticed in an eclipse in 968. In the eighteenth century, solar prominences, eruptions on the Sun's surface, were observed. These all helped give important information on how the Sun worked. The first eclipse photographed was in 1860. Eclipses in 1919 and 1929 helped confirm Albert Einstein's theory of relativity by confirming that the light of stars traveling near the Sun was bent by the Sun's intense gravity.

The totality will take a path stretching from Del Rio, which will reach totality at 1:30 up to Texarkana, which will see the totality at 1:56. The path of the Moon's shadow will roughly run parallel to Interstate 35 north of San Antonio to the Metroplex and include the almost the entire path of Interstate 30. San Antonio will be on the eastern edge of the totality, seeing the maximum eclipse by 1:34. Austin will see the total eclipse by 1:37, followed by Waco at 1:40. Almost the entire Dallas-Fort Worth area will be plunged into darkness as the Moon's shadow passes, including all of Dallas, Tarrant, Rockwall, and Collin counties by 1:42, with Denton on the northern edge of the totality. Even the extreme western and northwestern edges of the area such as Mineral Wells and Gainesville will see 98% coverage. The totality will cover the entire area between Sherman and Texarkana starting at 1:43.

Even people outside the totality will see a great deal of the eclipse. Along the Gulf Coast, viewers will see up to 93% of the eclipse, with Beaumont expected to see 94% at 1:40. On the northern side of the path of the totality, viewers will still see at least 83% of the Sun eclipse in the northwest Panhandle. Across the state, El Paso viewers will see 85% totality by 12:25 local time, Amarillo to see 87% eclipse by 1:40 and Lubbock to see 89% totality by 1:38. The line between San Angelo, Abilene, and Archer City will see 95% coverage. Wichita Falls will see 93% of the Sun obscured by 1:42.

The total time from the beginning of the eclipse until the end will be roughly two and one-half hours. A Dallas-area viewer will see the beginning of the eclipse at 12:23 and the end by 3:02. For Austin, it will begin at 12:17 and end at 2:58, with the peak at 1:37. At the mid-point of the eclipse, the totality will last between two and four minutes. From Texas, the long shadow of the Moon will then travel across Arkansas and Missouri and then to Illinois, Indiana, Ohio, New York, and to Maine throughout the afternoon. Millions of Americans are expected to enjoy what is being called the "Great American Eclipse."

Viewers should plan ahead to make sure the eclipse is viewed safely. Individuals need to remember that they should never look at the Sun directly. Even with most of the Sun obscured, the glare is too intense for the human eye to tolerate. Looking directly at the Sun is dangerous and could cause permanent eye damage and even blindness. Not even regular sunglasses or binoculars are safe. Darkened Welder's glass is the only safe glass dark enough to view an eclipse through. Specially made eclipse glasses can allow for safe viewing, but NASA recommends that these eclipse glasses not be used if they are torn or scratched and that children's viewing should be closely monitored. Even with eclipse glasses, people should not view the eclipse through telescopes, binoculars, or camera lenses. The classic pinhole projector will offer safe viewing: simply poke a small hole through one sheet of paper (poster board or cardboard can also work) and allow the fading sunlight to project onto another piece of paper.

With these precautions in place, the event promises to be a spectacular display of nature. As the Sun disappears behind the Moon, viewers will be able to see the features of the Moon. Lunar mountains and craters will allow only tiny pieces of the Sun to shine through, a phenomenon known as "Bailey's Beads." And the last piece of the Sun to disappear will shine brilliantly on the Moon's edge, known as the "Diamond Ring Effect."

NASA has unveiled a website for the eclipse, including tips on viewing the event safely at science.nasa.gov. Many communities are organizing eclipse viewing parties and events. The next major eclipse for Texas will be August 12, 2045.
