Kittens Rescued from Vehicle

The Protecting Animals of White Settlement (PAWS) shelter recently received a call regarding cats stuck under the hood of a car in the parking lot of a local store.

When PAWS staff arrived, they located the kittens behind the grill of the car, and realized that without removing parts of the car, they couldn't reach the kittens who were beginning to overheat.

Chris Hinds, a mechanic at a local car repair shop, provided the tools and much-needed expertise required to safely and quickly remove the kittens from the car.

The kittens will be available for adoption soon at the PAWS Center located at 8900 Raymond Ave. in White Settlement.

Lady Bear Athlete Spotlight: Ashlynn Gehring

Ashlynn Gehring earned first-team all-district honors for the Brewer volleyball team in 2022, and coach Jill Barkey said 2023 could be even better.

Barkey said Gehring brings the kind of qualities to a team that coaches look for to be successful.

"Ashlynn is an incredibly smart and talented player," Barkey said. "She's fun to coach and can execute a play. She helped lead our team in most stats last season because of these qualities."

Barkey said that her objectives for Gehring this coming season are three-fold.

"I really want her to have a successful, fun season," Barkey said. "I know she's recently decided she does want to play at the next level and I want to do whatever I can to help her get exposure and make the decision to find a team that's best for her. I will also rely on her to really step up now that she is a senior and help lead this team into the playoffs this season."

Brewer finished 15-20 overall last season, and Gehring said her feelings on the season as whole were somewhat mixed.

"There were certain things that could have gone a different way, as is every season, but overall it wasn't a bad year," Gehring said. "Everyone left it all on the court and played as a family. We built bonds that will last a lifetime."

Gehring, 16, said that her expectations heading into his season were to do the best that she could to contribute to the team and enjoy herself on the court.

"I wanted to make sure I was doing my job because I knew that I couldn't control anyone else," Gehring said. "No matter what anyone else was doing, I was going to give my best efforts to the team."

Gehring said she felt like

she accomplished her objectives.

The Brewer junior, who enjoys crocheting, reading books, traveling and spending time with her family, said that earning all-district honors meant a lot to her.

“I had a goal of getting to that point by my senior year,” Gehring said. “But receiving it as a junior was a good feeling and I plan on working just as hard to get it again next year.”

The Brewer High School athlete said she tries to remember to have fun with the sport no matter what the circumstances and said her best memories from this season came from doing just that.

“I enjoyed traveling with my team and the memories that we created on the bus rides,” Gehring said. “The singing, dancing, and funny conversations were like no other.”

Barkey said she would like to see a few things from Gehring this coming season.

“Our main focus in her end of season meeting was her being a more vocal leader,” Barkey said. “She leads by example, which is wonderful, and I want her to take it up a notch and help bring this team to another level. She’s a natural leader and her teammates want to follow.”

Recognizing the Poppy During May

A man by the name of Col. John McCrae was a surgeon with Canada's First Brigade Artillery when he wrote a poem expressing his grief of over the rows of graves of soldiers who died on Flanders' battlefields in western Belgium and northern France. The bright red flowers that bloomed among the rows of white crosses became a sign for all who fought in WWI.

The first version of the poppy was in December, 1915. McCrae's poem was noticed by two women; Anna Guerin of France and Moina Michael of Georgia. They both worked diligently to implement the sale of the artificial poppies to help orphans and other penniless individuals affected by the war. In 1920, Guerin received help from the American Legion to create the first poppy sale in the United States. The "flower of remembrance" is recognized not only in the U.S. but several other countries across the globe. Proceeds received from that first sale went towards the American and French Children's Leagues.

In 1922 Guerin had a hard time with distribution of the poppies and sought Michael for help where she wanted to use them as a symbol of remembrance of the war. Guerin was nicknamed "Poppy Lady of France" in her homeland and Michael "The Poppy Princess" by the Georgia legislature. Michael ventured out to the Veterans of Foreign Wars (VFW) for assistance when the poppy became the official memorial flower of the VFW.

1923 comes along and there's a shortage of poppies from French manufacturers so the VFW depended on various New York florists to make up the difference. It became a setback but led the idea by VFW officials to use unemployed and disabled veterans to make the artificial flowers. This was approved in 1923 and the first poppy factory was built in Pittsburgh, PA in 1924. This became of assistance to veterans and covered a steady and reliable source of poppies.

Today, the VFW distributes approximately 14 million all over the world. Around that same time the "Buddy Poppy" was registered with the U.S. Patent Office; "Buddy" was named as homage to their comrades that didn't come home from war.

Hence, the Buddy Poppy became the official remembrance flower in 1997. Profit from sales have helped numerous widows, widowers and orphans over the years and continues to perpetuate lives for our nation's freedom.

In Flanders Fields

by John McCrae

In Flanders fields the poppies blow
Between the crosses, row on row,
That mark our place; and in the sky
The larks, still bravely singing, fly
Scarce heard amid the guns below.

We are the Dead. Short days ago
We lived, felt dawn, saw sunset glow,
Loved and were loved, and now we lie,
In Flanders fields.

Take up our quarrel with the foe:
To you from failing hands we throw
The torch; be yours to hold it high.

If ye break faith with us who die
We shall not sleep, though poppies grow
In Flanders fields.

Inventor of Liquid Paper - Bette Nesmith Graham by Dr. Ken Bridges

An obstacle can be an opportunity for an enterprising spirit. This was the case for Texas inventor Bette Nesmith Graham. What had been an annoyance for typists led to the struggling single mother creating a new tool for offices and a multi-million dollar business. A single inspiration led Graham to invent the typing correction fluid she came to call Liquid Paper.

Born Bette Clair McMurray in Dallas in March 1924, she grew up in San Antonio. She was a difficult student in school as her stubborn personality led her to clash often with her teachers. As a result, she dropped out at age 17 and later completed night school. She married Warren Nesmith in 1942, and the couple had a son, Michael, later that year.

Her husband left to serve in World War II in 1942. After his return, the marriage collapsed; and the couple divorced in 1946. Newly divorced and having a young son to care for, she found a job as a secretary. Unfortunately, she did not know how to type very well, which was a vital office skill.

After her father's death, Nesmith moved back to Dallas with her mother and sister. She accepted a secretarial position at Texas Bank and Trust in the early 1950s and eventually worked her way to the position of executive secretary. However, she still made mistakes when typing.

Typewriter erasers were available, but their effectiveness were limited to the kind of typewriter ribbon used and often did not erase completely. In professions where precision were essential to avoiding any type of legal problem, this meant absolute perfection with any typed document. As such, even the slightest mistake meant that the typist had to begin again. This wasted time and paper and caused considerable frustration, from newspapers to students typing reports to businesses eager for efficiency and perfection.

One day, she happened to observe some sign painters. While precision was important in their work as well, she noted that they did not start over completely when they made a mistake – they simply painted over it. Inspired, she began applying water-based paint to typing mistakes. Before long, other secretaries began to find out about her correction fluid, and it soon became a hit. She steadily refined the formula to make it dry faster and soon had a profitable side business selling her correction fluid to secretaries across Dallas.

By 1956, she was filling orders full time out of her home for “Mistake Out,” as she called it. Her now-teenaged son and his friends often helped fill the orders as demand steadily increased. In 1958, she changed the name to “Liquid Paper,” and applied for and received a patent and trademark for her product.

She soon received national attention for her innovation. In 1958, General Electric placed the first large corporate order, for 400 bottles. At that point, she started offering Liquid Paper in different colors as not all documents were on white paper.

Changes came to her personal life as well. She married Robert Graham in 1962. Her son, Michael Nesmith had grown up and developed a successful acting and musical career, eventually co-starring with the pop group The Monkees. In the meantime, Liquid Paper steadily grew.

By 1964, the company was producing 5,000 bottles per week. By 1967, the company was working out of its own factory site in Dallas. Ten years after she launched Liquid Paper, the company was making 10,000 bottles per day and made $1 million in sales for the first time (more than $8.7 million in modern dollars). The company sold one million bottles in 1970 alone.

Graham moved her company into a new, 35,000-square foot facility in Dallas in 1975. Remembering her own struggles, she made sure that the site had special amenities for her employees, including a library and a day care center. Employees noted that she was practical and generous and had made emphasizing quality over profit a focal point of the business. She established the Betty Claire McMurray Foundation in 1976, named after her mother, to help women in business.

As her health began to fail, Graham sold Liquid Paper to the Gillette Company, known mostly for selling razors, in September 1979 for $47.5 million (or more than $201 million in modern dollars). Graham died in May 1980 at the age of 56. In spite of the eclipse of the typewriter by the modern computer, Liquid Paper remains a popular product. Sometimes a simple observation and hard work can produce a multi-million dollar innovation.

Memorial Day Weekend Means Increased Traffic

Motorists traveling during the Memorial Day weekend are reminded that state law requires drivers to slow down or move over for emergency vehicles – including tow trucks, police cars and fire trucks – stopped on the side of the road with their emergency lights activated.

Texas law requires drivers to slow down at least 20 miles per hour under the posted speed limit or, if able, to change lanes when they're passing a first responder stopped on the road with their emergency lights activated.

Large numbers of travelers are expected on Texas roads, which means that more breakdowns and traffic stops are likely as well. Drivers should pay attention to what's happening around them and prepare to react quickly.

TDLR licenses tow operators and tow companies in Texas, and regulates driver education/driving safety courses, and motorcycle/ATV safety courses.

About TDLR

TDLR provides regulatory oversight for a broad range of occupations, businesses, facilities, and equipment in Texas. The agency protects the health and safety of Texans by ensuring they are served by qualified, licensed professionals. Inspections of individuals, businesses, and equipment are done on a regular basis to safeguard the public. Currently, the agency regulates 37 business and occupational licensing programs with almost 1,000,000 licensees across the state.

Visit TDLR's website for more information and resources. You can search the TDLR licensee database, and also find past violations in which a final order was issued against companies or individuals. TDLR's Customer Service line is available anytime between 7 a.m. until 6 p.m., Monday through Friday, at 1-800-803-9202. TDLR representatives are fluent in English, Spanish and Vietnamese.
